

FISH AND GAME VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

The wild lands of California offer opportunities for caring people to come and share in land stewardship and enjoy others who work in conservation.

There are many choices for people who work in the Fish and Game Volunteer Program. There is a wide array of habitat restoration projects, special studies, wildlife rescue and rehabilitation projects, emergency response programs for oil spills, and many important support positions.

Work on projects in the wild places of our state, or assist in our offices, at schools or at one of our special events.

We are looking for volunteers to help us complete important conservation projects, enhance public education programs and expand recreational opportunities.

If you have the time, energy and interest, join us and make a difference to the wild lands of California.

Fill out and submit the volunteer application for any positions that interest you from the volunteer classifieds on the following pages. You may also submit your application to any of the Department's fish hatcheries, wildlife areas, or ecological reserves by sending your application to a DFG Regional Volunteer Coordinator (see bottom of application). Volunteer opportunities also exist at many of the Wildlife Care Facilities beginning on page 42.

Volunteer Positions

Volunteer Manager
Docent Naturalist
Special Event Assistant
Fishing Clinic Instructor
Data Entry Operator
Computer Specialist
Carpenter
Biological Aide
Project WILD Workshop Instructor
Habitat Aide
Hatchery Aide
Office Worker
Special Project Assistant
Graphic Designer
Illustrator
Video Production Assistant
Writer
Photographer
Underwater Photographer
Hunter Education Instructor
Support Services Aide
Oil Spill Wildlife Recovery Team

